

D. C. MAN SEIZES 2 COLONELS IN BED

Lieut. Charles Ashby Ingram, Washington, serving with the American "devil dogs" in France, writing from a convalescent hospital near the Marne, tells of a battle in which his unit captured two German colonels in bed and in which he received machine-gun bullet wounds which sent him out of the "scrap," temporarily.

Lieutenant Ingram's only regret, as expressed in his letter, was that he missed much of the "fun" of driving the Hun's pell mell toward the Hindenburg line, enjoyed to the utmost by his fellow "heavenly" soldiers.

Busy For Three Days.

"Have been as busy as the devil himself on receiving day, until the third day of the big drive," writes Lieutenant Ingram. "Then I got myself in the way of a machine-gun bullet and received a wound in the side, which is responsible for this wonderful rest I'm having—since they refused to let me remain with the company and shipped me off here to the hospital, where I am at present being spoilt according to my whims."

"The first day of the drive we surprised the Germans before daylight and captured about all in the front lines, including two colonels in bed. Later on in the day we captured all their artillery and ammunition in that part of the lines. The next day we met 'em again and it was another race, the boche first, we holding them a close second."

"Later on we had to send the French cavalry to catch up with them; we met them again on the third day and again they left us in the race, for they are good runners, if nothing else. Then I had to leave them, but the boys have certainly had them on the go, and I hear I missed a lot of fun. That is, as much fun as one can find in this war."

Quest of Souvenirs.

"As soon as I can get around the town I'll see what I can find in the way of souvenirs for you two, for this is the first town of any size I've struck."

Lieutenant Ingram, who is twenty-six years old, enlisted in the marine corps as a private and served as a lieutenant in Haiti. He has been in France since January. His wife is living at 41 T street northwest. His parents live in Jacksonville, Tenn.

AGED MAN LOST AT BLUE RIDGE

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Sept. 4.—Though parties have been searching the mountain around Blue Ridge Summit for days, no trace has been found of aged Smith Flohr, who disappeared a week ago today. Mr. Flohr was missed from the home of his son, Calvin S. Flohr, near Fountaindale, last Tuesday.

Supposing that he had gone to visit a relative, no attention was paid to his absence until it was discovered that he was missing in the neighborhood. Then relatives began a systematic search, which has continued almost continuously since. Twenty-five men are now scouring the mountain for miles.

It is not known whether the aged man wandered away while temporarily unbalanced, or has met with foul play, and his body has been hidden.

Mr. Flohr is eighty-two years old.

AIDS 372,835 OVERSEA.

The American Red Cross in France extended aid to 372,835 civilians during July, says a cable report received by the War Council today. The organization is operating eight hospitals, with accommodations for 1,828 patients, and seventy dispensaries, 26,141 persons receiving treatment at these institutions during the month. Of the total number of persons receiving aid, 109,965 were children; 182,446 refugees; 70,171 persons scattered through the war zone; 11,209 patients, and 10,094 tubercular patients.

DOCTOR PRESCRIBED VINOL
For This Poor Mother Who Could "Hardly Drag Around."

Glasgow, Ky.—"I am a farmer's wife and was suffering from a nervous breakdown—loss of flesh and poor appetite so I could hardly drag around and do the work for my family. My doctor prescribed Vinol. It not only made me well and strong but I have gained in weight."—Mrs. S. M.

The reason Vinol proved such a wonderful strength creator in Mrs. Gray's case is because of the beef and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptones, are glycerine phosphates combined in a pure, native tonic wine, which makes Vinol the most successful tonic.—O'Donnell's Drug Stores and druggists everywhere.

2 MARINES HUNTED AS AUTO BANDITS

The police today have thrown out a dragnet for the capture of two marines who last night attacked and robbed Cornelius Dulaney Jenkins, thirty years old, 1431 R street northwest, and after throwing him out of his automobile, apparently unconscious, drove away with his machine.

That Jenkins did not meet the same fate of John P. Werres, the Government Printing Office employee and jitney driver, who was done to death two months ago by two soldiers, he believes was due to his presence of mind in feigning unconsciousness.

Jenkins was engaged by the marines in front of the Raleigh Hotel to take them to Suitland, Md. As the automobile sped out the Marlboro road, across the District line, Jenkins was struck three blows on the head, probably with the butt of a service revolver. Jenkins fell to the floor and remained quiet while the marines rifled his pockets, taking his gold watch. He had hidden $40 under the driver's seat.

Jenkins bled profusely from scalp wounds. One of the marines he heard remark: "Get him out of here. I'm getting full of his damned blood."

They rolled him out on to the road, then sped off.

Jenkins summoned two negroes, who stopped an automobile which took him to Emergency Hospital. He then reported the affair to Acting Inspector of Detectives Evans at Police Headquarters.

Jenkins gave the following description of the men: No. 1—Twenty-eight years old, weighing about 140 pounds; dark hair, marine uniform, with sergeant's chevrons on sleeves. No. 2—Twenty-five years old, weighing about 145 pounds, smooth face, dark hair, wore corporate chevrons.

The automobile belongs to Charles S. Dulaney, 221 East Capitol street, and is a Cole-8 Sedan automobile, carrying District license numbers 4-785. It is valued at $2,500.

NEW DRAFT BRINGS "SAFETY FIRST" CRY

The second draft finds Washington besieged with applicants for commissions. Many of the applicants want safety-first places. Others say that their obligations are such that private pay is insufficient for them.

In either case, arrangements are being made to "take care of" a vast number of applicants. At present the rule against enlistments prevents issuance of commissions. But it is assumed that when registration is completed the bars will be lifted and commissions issued.

In many cases examinations for commission are now going forward, preparatory to issuance later.

The chemical warfare section is proving popular. It may be said of that service, however, that most of its officers will see service overseas almost at once. There will be comparatively few so-called "bomb-proof" berths.

Another branch of the service offering many new commissions which apparently has not been discovered is the new motor transport service. This branch needs a large number of officers, but it wants men of initiative and daring, and its duties, in many cases, are fully as dangerous as those of the infantry.

The United States marine corps is recruiting women so that men may be released from clerical duties at marine corps headquarters to go to the firing line. These women members of the corps are being brought from other cities—and they are having difficulty in finding places to live.

Hence the marine corps has decided to make a request of the people of Washington who have spare rooms to open them to the women members of the marine corps, so that the volunteers who come here to release men from front line duty may be sheltered.

The marine corps requests that persons who can rent rooms reasonably communicate by letter with chief clerk, adjutant and inspector's department, headquarters, marine corps, Eighteenth street and New York avenue.

Editorial

A man said to us: "This is no time for DREAMERS; what we want are practical men—men who are up and doing."

We'll agree with the up-and-doing statement, but emphatically deny the dreamer part.

Never was there such an opportunity for DREAMERS as now, and it is the dreamers that will win this war.

Who but dreamers could have conceived of tanks, mosquito tanks, "flivver" sub-chasers, giant aeroplanes, depth bombs, etc., etc.

This is a war of science, and it is the dreamer who reaches out into the unknown and brings back the big surprises which mean the advancing of our lines in France.

Of course, we must have the practical men to make the dream come true; but let's honor the DREAMER.
